

I Have To Write a Poem

I have to write a poem
but I really don't know how.
So maybe I'll just make a rhyme
with something weird, like "cow".

Okay, I'll write about a cow,
but that's so commonplace.
I think I'll have to make her be...
a cow from outer space!

My cow will need a helmet
and a space suit and a ship.
Of course, she'll keep a blaster
in the holster on her hip.

She'll hurtle through the galaxy
on meteoric flights
to battle monkey aliens
in huge karate fights.

She'll duel with laser saber
while avoiding lava spray
to vanquish evil emperors
and always save the day.

I hope the teacher likes my tale,
"Amazing Astro Cow."
Yes, that's the poem I will write
as soon as I learn how.

Kenn Nesbitt

Challenge:

We have just started our Poetry Unit this week. One of the trickiest things about writing poetry is choosing a topic to write about. The rest is pretty easy!

Brainstorm a list of topics that you would like to write poems about so you that you have some in your back pocket! The options are endless!